SATURDAY, MARCH 12, 1864.

We invite attention to the Chase manifesto against Mr. Lincoln which we publish on our first page. We do not know that at present we have anything to add to this arraignment.

Of courso the letter of Mr. Chase's that appeared in our telegraphic columns yesterday is a mere piece of political strategy, designed , as it certainly is adapted to increase the ardor of Mr. Chase's partisans, on the principle, as applicable in the moral as in the physical world, that a little cold-water thrown upon a hig fire serves to augment and intensify the flame. The letter signifies merely that the prospects of Mr. Chase are in his own estimation getting somewhat desperate, and demand fivo thousand pages of legal cap, making the infusion of new energy into his friends. | twenty-five inches deep of solid paper. If This the letter will effect, besides preparing a such a document could be pigeon-holed in soft place whereon to fall in the end, if fall he must. Let it not ha thought for a moment that the robels are so crippled, broken-down, or paralyzed, that thay can no lenger offer anything mora than a feeble resistance to the Union armies. They may be upon short and coarse rations, they may be half-naked, they may lack all the luxuries and much of what we usnally deem the necthan compensated by the all-sweeping conscription. A good many of them, wo say, desert, but those who remain fight in undiminished numbers and with the most desperato determination, stimulated, incited, and stnng by the thought, that to abandon the conflict would be to abandon themselves and their families to hopeless and reme iless ruin. We do not think we are mistaken when we express our helief, that, if a wise, just, and conciliatory policy had been adopted and strictly adhered to by the Federal Administration, there would not now be a sigu of rebellion in the whola country.

The rebels never did more descerate fighting or mere rapid marching than they have recently done against Gen. Seymonr in Flerida, and against Gen. Smith and Gen. It is not my intention to revert at length to the sad eatistrophe that befell our arms at Chattauooga. It is a subject too mournful for light comment.

Impartial history alone can divect it of the shades that hover about, and render justice to bud, and, as soon as he can get the polien, he impregnates with a fine bair pencil. This shades that hover about, and render justice to the viet m who, of necessity, must be sacrificed when misfortune attends. It strikes me been engaged in this production in a small been engaged in this production in a small that we are aping the Federals in this pecu-liarity—that ought to be sufficient to dama the practice in our eyes, not to say anything of its attendant curses and Athenian-like

Our encampment now lies nor h of the once pleasant town of Dalton. The country possesses not enough of elasticity—the fortunate character of the soil in Mildle Tennes-ee—to recover its own under the heavy burden of an army's pres nec. Therefore, everything in the way of agriculture is prostrate. The poorer class, the only inhabitants remaining, seem in-active and depressed. Once in a waile the cake-woman, or the pie-veuder, languidly tringes her weary way by our picket post.
This eadly reminds me of my own country, where many a Rachael we ps and is not conforted. The informal process of taking food from strong stalks.

Stalks that have grown up feebla give seed less capable of frem families, lest the Febrush might get it, has stripped many of the voly needs as its of life. I firmly beneve that the people of Georgia, who have call do so lutily for General Bragg's deposition, will rue the day that the great disciplinarian regard the reins of authority over an army which, without an iron hand to enforce the penalties of dischedence. trudges her weary way by our picket post.
This sadly reminds me of my own country, thority over an army which, without an iron hand to enforce the penalties of disabedience, will leave the sad vestige of desolation and August last which granulated. I cut the same cussion among the selfiers is the reorganiza-tion of our namy. That Congress will day us that privilege is as clear to my mind as the this denial may, as the presence of the great luminary, he necessary to our existence as an army efficient to e pe with a springfile adm ssion to the foe. All, I fear, will not regard it in this light. Oher considerations, that sound of home and rest, will go far toward far-racnting the pirt of disc ut at. This bi-sulphity of lime of our cause, and then to the perpetuation of Government purely Democratic I have mon seldier—I knew their feelings—their loves—their hates—their fears—their doubs.

Therefore, I feel fully competent, al.hough a subalteru and a you'h, to inform our leads this control of the product did not vary 200 lbs. per nere. The Neesecana, or white Imphee, did not seart as thick as the Sorgham, but there was only as thick as the Sorgham, but there was only as thick as the Sorgham, but there was only as unafferd and a your difference, that this same as the condition of the produced as the condition of the produced as the pro soldiery yet possissis a spirit whose intelli-gence must be consilted or instructed ere it percomes malicable metal in their hands. Matthe lest hay I over say. I am satisfied from ny who are true men, doubt the R publican field of some of our leading lights. In this doubt I fully indulae with them, but on a count of it I am anxious to make every temporary ecneession, embracing the listoric morto that "the end justifies the means" this case. Then, having gained the goal of . independence, we can hurl from us the cloak soil when planted. It is better to plant in the of that h ted anti-Republican policy in which we passed the Scylla and Charybdis of our early bours of the day than the aft racon,

I then would beg our soldiers, if discon tented eyes chance to fall ou this, to join with me and accept in the same of country and of safety such legislative provisions as our Congrees, the majority homest Republicans, shall to mine, one sixty feet and another ouly forty see fit to offer.
